

The Boy

The story starts with a little boy
He wasn't normal at all
He used to wear his shorts in the winter
He liked to bite his tongue
He said "the feeling is numb" and he liked it
I met this boy when I was just a teen
He said "just bite your tongue and
All your favorite dreams will come true"

Sting My Ding

Was walking down the street last Monday!
I saw a bee, he was looking funny!
I said "Hey bee, you're looking funny!"
Then he got angry!

Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!

Well mr bee, I'm very sorry!
That I said you're looking funny!
Would you like to have some honey?!
He wasn't hungry!

Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!

Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!
Sting my ding!

Ain't Funny

Those fragile words you said you knew
What do you want me to do?
I won't claim to know
'Cause I've been misled once before
So tell me please
Just tell me please
But you're leaving me
You're leaving me

And now you're turning back
Still telling me I will never learn
I will never learn
I will never

You're always breaking through the night
Call me, I'm lonely, it's a lovely night

I bet you never knew
But all the tricks and games you played on me ain't funny
They're all wearing me out
And since your turning back
All your pictures on the wall's been taken care of
So suit yourself and be off

'Cause I was misled once again
Stop telling me
Stop telling me
'Cause I'm leaving you
I'm leaving you

You're always breaking through the night
Call me, I'm lonely, it's a lovely night

Callaway

From a high I follow my steps
Lonely miles and loads of regrets
Still I walk, I walk
The soil on my fingers, the blood on my shirt
The foreign: all familiar, as I'm walking in the dirt
Keep up, yea, keep up

And I will say 'till I die, that I won't stray here for too long
If I don't sail away on my ship
I won't stand my own excuse
I wanna sail away on my ship

They told me I'm lost, I said that it's fine
I'll know when I'm lost and I'll know when I'm fine
They will see, I will see

They're expecting the sky, but they don't think it is real
To me heaven seem so far, but I'll stand my ordeal
And I'll live, sooner I'll live

They will see 'fore I die, that I'll behave and I'll belong
I'm gonna sail away on my ship
Those who stared me in the eye
They'll see me sail away
They'll see me sail away on my ship
Sail away on my ship

And I will say 'till I die, that I won't stray here for too long
If I don't sail away on my ship
Those who stared me in the eye
They'll see me sail away
They'll see me sail away on my ship

Nice Woofer

You're not letting me go, only letting me in
You played it smart, you let me win
Said "may the road lead you on, may the road take you far
And if you're ever not far, won't you give me a call?"

My veil of lies, you always smelled like roses
Until my eyes turned from blue
Now I smell nothing from you

As I went back to the start, you showed up with that same talk
Told me when to give in, told me when to hold on
And while the road took me far, all I found was a reason
Not to be where you are, still I'll give you a call

My veil of lies, you always smelled like roses
Until my eyes turned from blue
Now I see you through

Fast Food

There is an outlaw in the city I'm from He's called the outlaw, he's from the city I'm from
He came to me, pulled up in the street, he said a burger'd be nice!
Then I just contemplated and ended up with a burger with fries

A burger with fries

I was running through a painful exercise while I looked at my phone
And swiftly colors on the screen started to shift, there was an ad on my phone
It said "Your leftover food ain't no good, come grab a burger in town!"
It got me contemplating, just a quick break for a burger with fries

A burger with fries

A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
A burger with fries
